

State of Israel Bonds and Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University

May 30 Tribute Dinner honours Stephen Victor

"There isn't one aspect of community life that hasn't benefited from Stephen Victor's energy and commitment. What a great opportunity to pay tribute to him."

— Evelyn Greenberg,
Dinner Co-Chair

On Monday, May 30 1994, State of Israel Bonds and the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University will pay tribute to Stephen Victor for outstanding community and professional achievements. The Tribute Dinner will take place in the main ballroom of the Chateau Laurier Hotel where the featured speaker will be the award-winning orator and literary figure, Thomas Kenecally, author of Schindler's List.

Born and raised in Ottawa, Stephen is the son of Rhea and the late Sam Victor. Following his graduation in 1963 from Carleton University with a B. Comm., he attended the University of Ottawa where he attained his Bachelor of Law (LL.B.) in 1966. Stephen was called to the Bar in 1968 and embarked on a career in his chosen profession that has been marked by prominence and success. He was a senior partner of the law firm of Kimmel, Victor and Ages for 13 years; appointed Queen's counsel in 1981; and last fall became a senior partner in the newly amalgamated law firm of Soloway, Wright, Victor. In his professional capacity, Stephen is a member of the Carleton County Law Association, the Canadian Bar Association and a member of the International Association of Jewish Lawyers and Jurists.

Stephen's untiring commitment to the Ottawa Jewish community has been highlighted by exceptional service. He was the youngest camp director, ever, at 24 of Ottawa's Camp B'nai Brith and maintains his affiliation to the camp today, as a member of the Board of Directors. He is the only person in the city's history to have served as the senior officer for all of the community's major organizations; as President of the Jewish Community Centre of Ottawa (1978-1980); General Chair of the United Jewish Appeal (1984); and President of the Jewish Community Council, Vaad Ha'Ir (1987-1989). In 1992, Stephen received the Gilbert Greenberg award — the highest tribute which the Ottawa Jewish community can bestow on an individual.

Notwithstanding this ultimate recognition, Stephen has continued to serve our local community. He was the inaugural chair of the Board of Directors of the United Jewish Appeal. He is a founding member of the Jewish Social Services Agencies of Ottawa-Carleton (now Jewish Family Services), and has also chaired the Community Relations Committee of the Jewish Community Council. As well, Stephen is a member of the Board of Directors of Hillel Lodge.

Stephen has also lent his considerable expertise to Jewish organizations at the national level. He is an officer of the Canadian Jewish Congress (CJC) and a member of that organization's national executive. He is also a member of the United Israel Appeal of Canada's Board of Directors; the National Budgeting Conference of CJC; and the executive of the Council of Jewish Federations.

Yom Ha Shoah commemoration

By Ruth Kahane
Director of Community Relations

The ambassador of "a nation of Schindlers" received a prolonged standing ovation by over 600 people at the Yom Ha Shoah commemoration which marked the 50th anniversary of the rescue of the Jews of Denmark. The program took place on Sunday, April 10 at the Jewish Community Centre auditorium.

"What we did was quite naturally (sic) for us. We didn't feel that our Jewish friends were not Danes like we were. The whole thing was a normal act of human reaction," the Ambassador of Denmark to Canada Jorgen Behnke said.

"The deed of the Danish people remains as a moral object lesson of how we all ought to behave in the face of injustice and suffering. Their example puts the innocent bystanders so prevalent throughout the Holocaust years to shame," said keynote speaker Zvi Urim who was rescued with his family on a fishing vessel which took them from Denmark to Sweden in the fall of 1943.

In presenting a plaque for a garden of 120 trees planted in Israel from the Shoah (Holocaust) Remembrance Committee to the people of Denmark to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the rescue, Mr. Urim said the Danish people succeeded in defying the Nazis because they formed a united front and refused to remain passive when their fellow citizens were endangered. "The Danes formed a human wall of daring and silence around the rescue operation."

Shoah (Holocaust) Remembrance Committee chairperson Lea Kalin told the gathering that beyond remembering and mourning "we are here to bear witness to what happened to our people — at a time when the Nazi Holocaust deniers are becoming more numerous, bolder and stronger all over the world and the survivors are steadily becoming fewer in number and weaker. So, we rely on you and our children. Zachor, remember."

Following a moving rendition of El Moleh Rahamim, by Zvi Gross, Rabbi Howard Finkelstein of Beth Shalom West Congregation, led the gathering in the recitation of the Kaddish.

Referring to Holocaust deniers in his rabbinical address, Rabbi Finkelstein said he wished they could travel to see the ashes of one quarter of a million people in Majdanek as he had with The March of the Living and to be shown that "the lie, the fraud taken place so that 'the lie, the fraud being perpetrated by those that deny it should be exposed for what it was and what it is."

Of the 7700 Jews in Denmark in 1943 when the Gestapo struck, 7200 were saved in the rescue which took place. Jews went underground when they were alerted by the Danes that Rosh Hashanah was to be the zero hour when synagogues would be surrounded and the Jewish population deported. Danes from all walks of life found and created hiding places for the Jews. Later they were conveyed by fishing vessels to Sweden, financed largely by the wealthier people in the Jewish community.

Those who were caught and taken to Theresienstadt were released 1-1/2 years later after repeated visits by the Danish delegation. They were taken in a convoy of buses across the German-Danish border where the local Danes invited them home for a shower and meal and then bussed to Sweden to be united with the rest of the Danish community.

Participation in the hour-long commemoration spanned three generations — survivors, children of survivors and the third generation. The six memorial candles were lit by Barry Davis, Lynne and Lisa Levitan; Lottie Suk and Hana Cammy; Magda Kraus and Dora Goldman; Sam and Aaron Fishbain; Marianne and Irene Wolfe and Mina and Adam Cohn.

The Legacy was presented in Yiddish by Cantor Moshe Kraus, in English by Ruth Bratter and The Response was read by Rebecca Hadida. Akiva High School participants Claire Brickell, Ilana Grostern and Stephanie Levitz presented readings in English, Yiddish and Hebrew.

President of the Jewish Community Council of Ottawa Dr. Bernard Dolansky and Eli Yerushalmi, Minister-Councillor of the Embassy of Israel also brought greetings to the gathering.

OBE changes '94 school start date

As the Bulletin was going to press, the Ottawa Board of Education trustees voted to delay the starting date of the 1994-95 school year until Thursday, September 8 so that school will not begin on Rosh Hashanah.

At the meeting on April 11, trustees overwhelmingly supported the step as a move to advance multiculturalism.

Six Toronto area boards have also opted to start school on September 8.

The school year calendar will be adjusted slightly. Teachers will have a Professional Activity Day on September 7 and the school year will end Friday, June 30.

The conflict will not occur again for roughly 35 years.

COMMENTARY

VAAD REPORT

DR. BERNARD OLANOVSKY
PRESIDENT, VAAD HAIR

Welcome to UIA delegates

I would like to extend a very warm welcome to the dedicated men and women visiting Ottawa for the United Israel Appeal National Campaign Leadership Conference.

We are honoured to be the host community for such a distinguished group that represents some of our best Canadian Jewish leadership.

With our own Sunny Tavel as the Conference Chair and the great program that is planned I know that your visit to Ottawa will be just great. From the Jewish Community Council of Ottawa - Shalom.

As the cover of this edition of the Bulletin indicates, a very special member of our community is being honoured by State of Israel Bonds in conjunction with Hebrew University. I'll have more to say about Stephen Victor as the Tribute Dinner draws closer but I encourage all the members of our community to attend the dinner and support an investment in State of Israel Bonds.

1994: Apocalypse now?

To paraphrase a popular question "Why is this year different from all other years?" In recent years, we experienced vicariously and celebrated euphorically the exodus of Jews from the former Soviet Union and from Ethiopia. We were enthusiastic about historic events that were unravelling before our eyes. We appeared united, paving the way for messianic redemption through our commitment to bring Jews to Israel from oppressed lands.

But something happened this past year. The excitement of witnessing Russian Jewish immigration to Israel was replaced with the sobering sight of Russian Jews applying for refugee status in Germany from Israel. The fragile unity of Israelis engendered by massive Russian and Ethiopian Jewish immigration was shattered as the chasm between religious and secular Jews there widened, threatening to once again swallow up Israeli society. The peace process tore Israel down the middle even without territorial concession. Finally, the massacre of Arab worshippers in Hebron delivered a serious blow to a rapprochement between Israelis and Arabs.

How do we understand these upsetting trends? Do we despair? Do we become depressed? Or do we attribute these obstacles, no matter how disturbing or reprehensible to what our Rabbis call "Chelev Mashiach," the birth pains of the Messianic period?

In truth, we must say that the sad experiences of the past should not deter us from our belief that we are indeed in the period of messianic redemption, and that the State of Israel is, as we say in the prayer for the State, "the beginning phase of redemption." At the same time, we must state emphatically that though we live in Messianic times, we cannot bring Mashiach faster through acts of murder as we saw in Hebron.

One should not simplistically look at a Baruch Goldstein and dismiss him as "deranged," or as one who was seeking revenge for the loss of numerous Jews to Arab terror. Similarly, one should not simplistically declare that Goldstein's misinterpretation of Torah led him to commit murder in the second holiest place in Judaism, or even state that such action can be attributed logically and directly to the teachings of his mentor, Rabbi Meir Kahane, without referring to one important, albeit ignored, aspect.

Goldstein, like the members of the Macheteret, the "underground" that plotted to blow up the Temple Mount mosques some years ago, was trying in a totally anti-Halachic way to bring Mashiach quicker. Rational people may find this interpretation repulsive, but deeds such as committed by Goldstein and planned by the Underground members a few years ago were meant to be apocalyptic. Had, for example, the members of the underground succeeded in destroying the Dome of the Rock and the Al Aksa mosques, that horrifying final war between Arabs and Israelis would have taken place to the eschatological delight of certain groups, and to the consternation and concern of world and Israeli Jewry.

Redemption cannot be rushed. Murder and terror will not hasten it. While we must constantly remind the world and ourselves that similar acts of terror have been committed by Arabs against Jews with little universal condemnation, we must also declare that those who attempt to bring Mashiach faster with criminal actions only bring harm to the Jewish people.

We have suffered too often and too much because of people or movements whose Messianic pretensions brought despair instead of hope. The ancient unknown demagogue who convinced members of the tribe of Ephraim to leave Egypt before the advent of Moses brought death to that group.

In modern times, Shabbotai Zvi's antics destroyed the fabric of Jewish unity, never to be mended until today. The actions of a doctor in Hebron have set back the redemption time-clock.

We have just finished celebrating the holiday of Passover which teaches us that there is a process of Jewish history and of redemption. The Hebrews were enslaved for 92 of their 210 year sojourn. Redemption did not come immediately, but only through the realization that if we truly follow G-d's ways and mitzvot then Mashiach will come.

As the Haggadah tells us, "A day will come, but only Hashem knows that day" of redemption. Indeed, the black days we have suffered in 1994 will come to an end, and the black deeds that have been committed will not deter us from the arrival of that true day of light.

In March of last year, Stephen served as Chair of the Parliamentary Dinner and Conference of the Canada-Israel Committee held in Ottawa.

His boundless energy has found expression in service to the general community as well. He is a past associate chair of the Ottawa Civic Hospital's Heart Institute Research Centre's Campaign and has served on the Board of Directors of the Hospital's Heart Institute Alumni, for which he has acted as counsel since 1985. He has also taken an active role in fundraising campaigns for the Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis and the Ontario Heart Fund.

Stephen is married to the former Gail Steinman and they have two daughters, Jodie and Andrea, both now residing in Toronto.

Contributions raised at the Tribute Dinner will establish the Stephen and Gail Victor Centre for Trial Advocacy at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. This centre will enable outstanding Canadian lawyers and jurists to visit Israel and participate in the program designed to advance the study of Trial Advocacy in the Faculty of Law at the University.

The Dinner has been organized through the unique partnership and fundraising efforts of the State of Israel Bonds and the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University. It is Stephen's wish that contributions to the Dinner be made with the purchase of State of Israel Bonds which will be donated to the Hebrew University - thus benefiting both esteemed organizations. To add a further dimension to the event, a portion of the funds realized will remain in Ottawa to perpetuate the existing academic exchange agreement between the Hebrew University and the University of Ottawa, Stephen's law school alma mater.

This event will provide an opportunity to honour a man whose endless devotion and exemplary dedication has enriched his community, his profession and the many causes and organizations he has so ably served with distinction.

Attendance at the dinner is by purchase of a ticket at a cost of $125.00 per person. A bond purchase and/or donation would be appreciated.

Please note bonds purchased and then donated to the University are tax deductible and a tax receipt will be issued for their value. This pledge may be payable over a four year period. For those unable to attend the dinner, donations will be gratefully appreciated.

ORGANIZATIONS AND PEOPLE

From 1994 UJA Campaign Chair Sam Firestone

... "In every generation..."

It was not in the too distant past that those of us who lived in free democratic countries used the holiday of Passover to remember our fellow Jews behind the Iron Curtain. Jews who could neither fulfill the Jewish dream of returning to Zion nor express their cultural and religious identity by congregating together on this special holiday. Today we witness miracles that the past generations could only dream about. The renewal of ex-Soviet and Eastern European Jewry continues. Nearly half a million Jews from the former Soviet Union now live in Israel. Those who have not yet made plans to emigrate are rediscovering their roots and traditions with the help of Israeli emissaries and teachers. The drama of exodus and seeking freedom for our people have been played out in our generation. What a privilege and honour it is for us to participate in it and to tangibly demonstrate our support for it.

The miracles we read about every day continue and are possible thanks to the day-to-day work of all of us who are involved in the fund-raising campaigns for the United Jewish Appeal, which in turn funds the work of the Jewish Agency in Eastern Europe.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Elissa Lief and David Resnick who organized two very successful telethons which took place on March 1 and March 22. Many thanks to the volunteers who came out to phone: Sharon Appotiv, Mark Borts, Naomi Cracower, Peter Fine, Fran Gershberg, Leslie Greenberg, Lyon Hamburg, Michael Landau, Faye Goldman, Cally Kardash, Irwin Kreisman, Sandy Kronick, Esther Kulik, Irving Kulik, Elissa Iny, Steve Levinson, Elissa Lief, Norman Lief, Linda Nadolny-Cogan, Howard Nadolny, Mark Pankowski, Michael Rapp, David Resnick, Shuli Rodal, Gregory Sanders, Stanley Schiff, Gordie Schmidt, Arnie Vered, Susie Welsman, Lawrence Weinstein, Sunny Tavel and Jeff Taylor.

I would also like to acknowledge the Jewish Student Union/Hillel for the telethon they held on March 22. Thanks to the work of Dan Wolfish, Cecile Bensimon, Stephanie Engel, Lauren Hoffer and David Torjman, University Students' Union lists were completely revised and updated. A large number of students pledged to the United Jewish Appeal for the first time making it the most successful student campaign in the U.J.A. of Ottawa history.

Plans are well under way for the upcoming Walkathon, which will take place on May 29, 1994, at 881 Broadview. In this issue of the Bulletin you will find a sponsorship envelope. Please make sure that you line up your sponsors and raise much needed funds for our many projects and obligations.

The Kovod evening, which is held annually to thank and honour our many volunteers will be held on May 2, 1994 in Room 200 West Block, Parliament Hill. The key-note speaker will be the Honourable Herb Gray, Solicitor General and House Leader. I urge you to attend this most special evening.

Please help us finalize this campaign in spectacular fashion: participate in the Walkathon as a walker, biker, jogger or volunteer. Give us a few hours of your time at an upcoming telethon by calling the U.J.A. office at 789-7306 and offering your help. With the help and involvement of everyone we will continue to witness miracles for Jewish people everywhere... that's a promise.

For first time since 1948, U.N. condemns attack on Israel

UNITED NATIONS (JTA) — For perhaps the first time since 1948, a terrorist attack against Israel has been denounced at the United Nations.

The U.N. secretary-general and the president of the Security Council have condemned the April 6 suicide bombing of a bus in Afula, which killed at least seven Israelis.

"The members of the Security Council view with shock and outrage the attack on Israeli civilians on a passenger bus in the town of Afula on April 6, 1994," said New Zealand Ambassador Colin Keating, who holds the rotating presidency of the Security Council.

"The members condemn this act of terror and extend sincere condolences to the wounded and the families of those who lost their lives," he said.

Statements from the council president enable the council to make its views known without convening the council or issuing resolutions.

Israeli Ambassador Gad Yaacobi specifically requested that the council not convene.

Last month, the council met to condemn the murders of worshippers in a Hebron mosque, which led to a resolution calling for foreign observers in the West Bank city.

"The members of the Security Council view with shock and outrage the attack on Israeli civilians on a passenger bus in the town of Afula on April 6, 1994"

—New Zealand Ambassador Colin Keating

In a letter to the secretary-general asking for condemnation of the killings, Yaacobi explained that the peace process is best advanced by the parties involved.

An Israeli official at the United Nations said the council president's statement fell short of general protocol. Instead of being prepared for publication as an official U.N. document, as is usually the case, Keating simply read remarks without entering them into the official record.

Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali's remarks came in an official statement by his spokesman, which said he "strongly condemns this act of violence" and extended condolences.

His remarks also expressed the hope "that this outrageous incident will not be permitted to impede the ongoing negotiations between the government of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization."

The U.N.'s denunciations of Arab terror against Jews are thought to be the first in more than four decades.

"As far as our long memory goes," said the Israeli official, "we remember that the Security Council did condemn such attacks — in 1948."

ORGANIZATIONS AND PEOPLENotice of the 60th Annual Meeting of the Jewish Community of Ottawa

In accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the Jewish Community Council/Ottawa Vaad Ha'R which governs the affairs of the Jewish Community of Ottawa, notice is hereby given that the Sixtieth Annual General Meeting will take place on Wednesday evening, June 8, 1994, at 7:00 p.m. in the auditorium of the Jewish Community Centre, 151 Chapel Street, Ottawa, for the purpose of receiving reports and financial statements, and for the election of Officers and Trustees for the coming year.

Every member of the Jewish Community of Ottawa who is eighteen years of age and over and a contributor in good standing during the current year to the United Jewish Appeal of Ottawa is invited to attend and is eligible to vote for Officers and Trustees-at-Large. No participating member of the community may vote by proxy.

The By-Laws call for the election of a President, a First and Second Vice-President, a Treasurer, an Honorary Secretary and a Board of Trustees composed of representatives of synagogues and organizations, beneficiary agencies, youth and the clergy.

Wednesday, June 8, 1994 at 7:00 p.m.
Jewish Community Centre

The names of these designates for 1994-95 are shown alongside this column so far as that information is available at this time. The Board of Trustees include thirty Trustees-at-Large, ten of whom are elected each year for a period of three years. The listing of the Trustees whose term expire in 1994, 1995 and 1996 are also included.

Officers may only serve two consecutive one-year term in their respective offices. No person is eligible to be an Officer unless he or she has sat as a Trustee for the prior year.

The Constitution also provides for the appointment of a Nominating Committee which has the responsibility of selecting a Slate of Officers and Trustees-at-Large for the ensuing year and proposing their names to every known participating member of the community.

This Committee has met and their recommendations are as follows:

OFFICERS

For President: Dr. Bernard Dolansky
For First Vice-President: Lawrence Greenberg
For Second Vice-President: Dr. Charles Freedman
For Treasurer: Barbara Farber
For Honorary Secretary: Stephen Greenberg
For Trustees-at-Large: Barry Cantor, Ida Firestone, Elissa Iry, Ralph Kassie, Mona Klinger, Michael Landau, Norman Lief, Lori Loeb, Jeff Taylor, Susan Vered

Other persons eligible to be elected as Officers and Trustees-at-Large may be nominated in writing and their name will appear on the ballot, provided that the person so nominated consents in writing to be a nominee; ten other participating members of the Jewish Community sign the nomination papers; and that the nomination papers are received by Tuesday, May 17.

Should there be any further nominations, the community will receive notice of the names of such nominees and positions in the Bulletin of May 30.

Canadian Associates of Ben-Gurion University

Meridor addresses Ottawa Chapter

Dan Meridor M.K., Israel's former Minister of Justice (1988-1992) addressed the Ottawa Chapter of the Canadian Associates of Ben-Gurion University at a brunch on March 20, 1994, held at the home of Natalie and Raymond Stern. Susannah Dalfen, president of the Ottawa chapter, and Natalie Stern co-chaired the program.

The brunch was organized in connection with the Ben-Gurion University Tribute to William (Bill) Grossman who was presented with the University's highest award - The Ben-Gurion Negev Award. Mr. Grossman was recognized for his lifelong commitment to building the Ottawa Jewish community, to strengthening the State of Israel and to assisting in the work of Ben-Gurion University.

In addition to presenting his personal insights on the Israel-PLO Peace Accord, Dan Meridor praised the Ottawa Associates' efforts to ensure a smooth integration of Ethiopian immigrants into the mainstream of Israeli society by directing funds raised from the tribute to Mr. Grossman towards the establishment of the William and Lenke Grossman and Family Scholarship Fund for Ethiopian Immigrant Students at Ben-Gurion University.

He stated, "If we focus on the young generation... we will be able to push from this community the bright ones and make them the leaders of the community. This is the best way to help the whole Ethiopian community in Israel to become part of the society. Especially with the big concentration of those people in the Negev - Ben-Gurion University does an immensely important job."

Mayor Jacquelin Holzman was present and officially acknowledged as was Bill Grossman. Also present were members of the Ottawa Board of Directors, Dr. Eve Shulman and Avraham Iry; Leo H. Marcus, National Executive Director, Canadian Associates of Ben-Gurion University and Claire Horowitz, Executive Director, Ontario Region.

ORT

Cooking up a storm for Passover

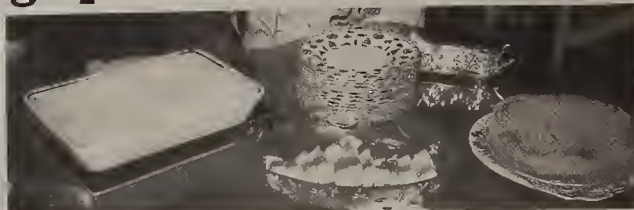

By Reesa Aaron

Myra Aronson was really cooking on March 8 when she opened up her home to the ladies from Chavarot Chapter of ORT. There was a good turn-out to watch Myra demonstrate a special crash course on Cooking for Passover.

For the Passover holidays, "All the rules go out the window," confided Myra. "I buy something like 22 dozen eggs. All caution is thrown to the wind!"

Passover food does not have to be boring, not anymore, says Myra. "Now it can be innovative instead of dreaded. Just use cake meal, nuts and eggs whites instead of flour!"

Myra shared four special recipes which she peppered with some personal hints, tidbits and how-tos. She made chocolate farfel pecan clusters, chocolate mousse cake with raspberry sauce, jam knish bread and salmon lasagna. The ORT group even got her to divulge her prized chicken ball recipe. "Buy Gold's Duck Sauce—it's Kosher LePesach—to go with them. You won't be sorry."

Myra has a wealth of cooking experience to her credit. In addition to feeding a husband and four children, Myra teaches cooking at Akiva High School and is a co-editor of Ottawa's well-known Hillel Academy cookbook.

Now that Spring is in the air the members are gearing up to launch their annual Mother's Day Brunch Box Campaign. This year's should prove to be a real culinary surprise so start thinking of that special someone that you would like to treat to bagel, lox, cream cheese and much more! Remember that if the lady is not in town, brunch boxes can be donated to Hillel Lodge and a full tax receipt will be issued. For more information please call Tai Maoz at 825-6993.

Many new members are joining the Chavarot Chapter of ORT, making an already vibrant chapter even more so. New faces are always welcome. Contact Beverly Cogan-Gluzman at 726-1070 for more information.

Just a reminder that ORT has sympathy, mazal tov, chai, all purpose cards and hasy notes available. All were designed by female Canadian artists. They are beautiful cards to keep on hand for any occasion. If you are interested in purchasing some contact Penny Resnick at 731-3324.

N'Shei Chabad

Ottawa women being honoured

Presidents of Ottawa's leading women's organizations are being honoured at a gala event sponsored by N'Shei Chabad of Ottawa. The event will be held April 25 at 7:30pm on Parliament Hill.

The devotion and dedication of these volunteers provide not only strength to their organizations but also serve as shining examples for the continuity and unity of the Jewish people.

The following presidents are to be recognized for their selfless devotion: Beverly Cogan Gluzman, ORT; Andrea Aron, ORT; Lillian Laks, Naamat; Linda Nadolny Cogan, UJA Women's Federation; Ellen Fathi, National Council of Jewish Women; Terry Schwartzfeld, Hadassah-WIZO; and Eva Epstein, Mizrahi Emonah.

The guest speaker for the evening is Sora Vigorito who will relate her incredible story as a Mengele twin survivor.

There will also be musical entertainment to celebrate Lag B'Omer. For further information call Chaya Berger 722-5029.

Lillian Coplan Gertsman will deliver historical talk

The Ottawa Jewish Historical Society will continue its program of bringing local history to the community with a presentation by Lillian Coplan Gertsman entitled "As They Were, a Family Odyssey."

Gertsman, daughter of the late Lena Pullan Coplan and industrialist Archibald Coplan, will discuss her family's philanthropic and Zionist activities during the early years of the Ottawa Jewish community.

Archibald Coplan, who became one of Canada's most prominent Jews, gained expertise in the manufacture of machinery in Vilna and Germany. He came to Canada in 1905 and soon became president of the Hull

Lillian Coplan Gertsman

Iron and Steel Foundry. Through the manufacture of machinery to build railways in peacetime, and the production of steel during World War I, Mr. Coplan was known throughout the British Empire.

Lena Coplan led many of Ottawa's charitable organizations at a time when new immigrants were in critical need of assistance. A local Hadassah chapter was named in her honor.

Mrs. Gertsman's personal interest in the community has led to many years of volunteer service on the boards of local artistic, educational and philanthropic organizations. The social gathering will take place on Sunday afternoon, May 1 at 3:00pm at the Agudath Israel Synagogue, 1400 Coldrey Avenue. The community is invited to attend.

United Israel Appeal of Canada

National Campaign Leadership Conference

The Canadian Jewish community's top campaign leadership, drawn from the United Jewish Appeal will gather in Ottawa from April 23-25 at the annual United Israel Appeal National Campaign Leadership Conference.

As in the past, the conference will be augmented by outstanding presenters from Israel and the United States. They include the President of the Council of Jewish Federations, Mr. Maynard Wisnower; Professor Allen Pollack, noted Sovietologist of Jerusalem and New York; and Bud Levin, Director of Major Gifts, National United Jewish Appeal of America. Other guests include Rabbi Adi Saitanik and Shlomo Pollack of Keren Hayesod and Rachel Dzidic, recently rescued from Sarajevo and now living in Israel.

Billed as a "Postgraduate Seminar" the conference is viewed as a campaign laboratory where innovative ideas for the upcoming campaign season are tested and refined. Workshops dealing with key campaign issues and strategies are a central feature of the proceedings.

Enhancing the program will be a multi-media presentation. An additional feature will be the availability of high-tech take-home information to "help get your (campaign) team into high gear."

On Sunday evening April 24, participants will be hosted at the home of the Israeli Ambassador, which will precede dinner at the home of Laya and Sol Shabinsky.

Sunny Tavel of Ottawa is the Conference Chair. Trudy Pekarsky of Vancouver, Chair of U.I.A. National Women's Division, is the Program Chair. Julia Koschitzky, World Chair of Keren Hayesod will make the closing presentation.

For further information, please contact Sunny Tavel at the U.I.A. office, 789-7306.

UJA reaches out to Orleans

On February 20 a UJA Outreach program was held at the Orleans home of Charna and Joseph Mittelman. The co-hosts for the evening were Gerry and Cheryl Cogan of Chapel Hill and Mary McLeod and Jonathan Stokes of Beacon Hill.

In all, 25 guests, comprised of singles, couples, newcomers and long-time members of the Jewish community enjoyed the socializing and educational experience. The two speakers for the evening, Cally Kardash and Sunny Tavel, were inspiring. Despite their jet-lag, their enthusiasm for what they had just seen in Israel as well as their concern for Ottawa's Jewish community was infectious. They were both able to clarify the role played by UJA and defined how members of the community could play their part.

CAMPUS BEAT

High school in Israel a real eye-opener

By Sheri Chiprout

1st year Arts student, Carleton University

Last year my parents gave me the opportunity to spend a year in a high school in Israel. This of course meant leaving my family and friends and going halfway across the world to completely start a new chapter in my life. Well, after much deliberation, the idea became a reality and I found myself on a flight to Israel.

I lived in a town called Pardess Hanna. My program consisted of about 35 high school students from all over North America. We lived in dormitories at Pardess Hanna Agricultural High School, where 1400 other Israelis also attended.

Many of us in the American Program experienced the shock of our lives on the first day of school. Our madrich (counselor) walked in our room and yelled "Rise and shine" at 6:15 in the morning! This was going to be the beginning of our day for the next 10 months. The school day was from 7:30 until 3:00, 6 days a week, with the exception of one day a week when we took our tiyuls (trips).

The tiyuls were one of the major highlights of the program. We travelled the whole of Israel from top to bottom, learning all about the history of the Jewish people, important historical figures and also what the future held for this country. We learned this in chronological order, starting with Abraham and the Bible and towards the completion of the program, ending up in the Silicone Valley in the north of Israel.

Not only were these excursions educational, they were also gruelling. We hiked mountains, valleys and deserts — nothing was ever too hard for us. Many things we thought humanly impossible or at least quite dangerous to our health were done with more ease than we expected. This built up our outer strength but also our inner strength. It made us aware of our capabilities because nothing is impossible. We also went on tiyuls with Israelis. We hiked one of the highest mountains in Israel and this was meant to be just for fun!

Our association with Israelis was also an integral part of the program. It gave us a feeling for the Israeli lifestyle and mentality. It made us more aware of our surroundings and also gave us an opportunity to practise and speak Hebrew. We made meaningful friendships with the Israelis as well as with the people in the program. You get to see and understand people for what they are and learn to appreciate them. These friendships will last a lifetime and will never be forgotten.

This trip to Israel was an experience that I will never forget! It made me a stronger person, ready to tackle just about anything. It was a very important growing experience and gave me a very positive impression of Israel, making me aware and proud of my Judaism. The program taught me how important Israel is to me and to all of the Jewish people.

Now, my next step, is my return...

Program promotes comparative studies between Canada, Israel

According to Professor Arie Shachar of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, "Canada and Israel have a lot in common and much to learn from each other. One of the objectives of the Canadian Studies Program at the Hebrew University is to raise faculty and student awareness of these similarities."

Professor Shachar is the Leon Saidie Professor in Urban Studies. He also serves as the director of the Hebrew University's Institute of Urban and Regional Studies, and for the last 12 years as chairperson of the Halbert Centre for Canadian Studies also at the Hebrew University.

The Halbert Centre for Canadian Studies which is co-sponsored by Ralph and Roz Halbert of Toronto and the Government of Canada, brings Canadian professors to the Hebrew University to teach courses on Canada and conduct research of mutual benefit to Canada and Israel. Nearly 40 scholars have participated in the program since its inception in 1976. One of the most active centres of Canadian studies in the world, it promotes research on Canada in the disciplines of literature, history, anthropology and sociology, political science, geography, economics and law. Other activities of the centre include initiating joint Hebrew University-Canadian research projects, organizing conferences on subjects of mutual interest and relevance, publishing books and working papers, and organizing a public lecture series.

Professor Shachar was in Toronto in February to review prospective candidates to teach at the Hebrew University next year. "Each year we consider about 15 to 20 candidates. We look for first-rate scholars who are good teachers and communicators and can bring specific Canadian content and flair to their teaching. It's always a difficult decision to make because the candidates are experts in their fields and have much to offer," says Shachar.

Professor Shachar's interest in Canada began around 20 years ago when he was the Israeli representative at Habitat I, an international conference on human settlements which was held in Vancouver.

"Through my on-going contact with Canadian urban planners I soon realized that Canada and Israel have a lot in common in this area," says Shachar.

In some public policy areas, Israel looks to Canada for innovative and efficient solutions. This includes interest in Canada's health, education and transportation systems. The common interest in Canada and Israel in the performance of public services culminated last year in the publication of a new book by Magnes Press for the Halbert Centre entitled Public Services Under Stress - Canadian-Israeli Policy Review.

"Canada's constitution is also of interest as Israel looks to establish its own," says Shachar. In 1992, the Canada-Israel Legal Co-operation Program was established in co-operation with the Halbert Centre. Honorary chairpersons of the program are Chief Justice of Canada Antonio Lamer and his Israeli counterpart Meir Shamgar.

"Research and teaching through the Canadian Studies Program is conducted within a comparative framework. Canadian and Israeli issues are studied and compared. We then try to apply the experiences and lessons learned in one to the other. It's an innovative approach other Canadian studies programs around the world are starting to adopt."

Passover Model Seder at Hillel Academy with Shoshana Jalon's Grade 2 class

Why Jewish education?

By Ariazur Ellashiv
Principal, Judaic Studies,
Hillel Academy

A few weeks ago I was asked by a number of people "Why should my child attend a Jewish School?" They continued by saying that if asked why one attends a public school, they could probably make a long and interesting list of the aims or goals to be reached through these studies. But, how to explain the need for a Jewish education? What are the goals we hope to reach through our Jewish knowledge?

One of the goals is the preservation of Judaism. If we do not teach our children such things as Jewish ideals and Jewish literature, they will be unable to hand them on to their children, and within a few generations all that we call Judaism will have disappeared from actual life. One important goal of Jewish education, therefore, must be to preserve Judaism by teaching it to each successive generation.

We should know about our past. A Jew who knows about his people's past, who feels that he truly belongs to the Jewish group and who knows all the noble contributions Jews have made and are still making in the world, is only then able to feel proud of his heritage. The only way to reach this goal is through Jewish education.

Jews everywhere have to feel a strong bond of kinship with one another. We need to realize that no matter where Jews live or what the external differences among them, we are all one people. We share the same joys, the same sorrows, and the same future. We have the same ideals and the same hopes. It is only if all Jews know their past and understand their common heritage, that this kinship can be felt and this can be achieved only through Jewish education.

In the words of Louis Marshall: "If we, the Jewish people, ever come to the stage where we fail to respond to the call of Jewish education, we will have done what our enemies never succeeded in doing . . . we will have destroyed ourselves. We will have written our own death warrant."

Dr. Max Florence dies

Dr. Max Florence, a former Ottawa dentist and well known in the Jewish community, passed away recently in Toronto.

Max was born and raised in Peterborough, Ontario. He started his 19-year practice in Ottawa, after graduating from dental school in 1950.

He was a mainstay in the protracted fight to put fluoridation — which prevents tooth decay — into the drinking water of Canada's capital. Defeated at first in a 1962 plebiscite, a bitter fluoride debate raged throughout the city and at City Hall until a decisive victory was scored in a second referendum held two years later.

A campaign of terror against Florence and outspoken candidates on his committee and in City Council was carried on during both plebiscites virtually up to the very day on November 15, 1965 when fluoridation was begun.

In a rare gesture, the Academy of Medicine of Ottawa on October 8, 1969 awarded him an honorary membership in its organization for "service to the community . . . through his devoted work on behalf of fluoridation."

Florence was the inventor of a toothbrush that in large measure substitutes for dental floss. His Sulcabrush is distributed all over North America.

In 1969, Max and his wife Rochelle (nee Schapira) moved to Israel with their family. He practised dentistry in Jerusalem until returning to Canada in 1977. He then practised in Toronto, where he was chief of dentistry at the Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care, until his retirement in 1993.

Over the years he returned to Israel on several occasions to serve in the Dental Volunteers for Israel program (D.V.I.), a worldwide organization that provides the only dental care that many Jewish and Arab children may ever receive. He was a co-founder of the Canadian branch of D.V.I.

Adath Shalom

Rabbi Alvan Kaunfer to lead Shabbaton

By David F. Skoll

On Friday and Saturday, April 29 and 30, Adath Shalom Congregation will be holding a Lag B'Omer Shabbaton to which all members of the Jewish community are invited. Rabbi Alvan Kaunfer of Temple Emanu-El in Providence, Rhode Island, will be the special guest.

Rabbi Kaunfer holds a master's degree in education from Columbia University, and a doctorate in Jewish Education from the Jewish Theological Seminary. He was the founding director of the Solomon Schechter School in Rhode Island, and has special interests in family education, havrutot, synagogue programming, outreach work and adult education.

Rabbi Alvan Kaunfer

On Friday, Kabbalat Shabbat services will begin at 5:45pm at 881 Broadview Avenue. The service will be followed by a pot-luck supper at 6:45pm. At 8:00pm, Rabbi Kaunfer will present a family-oriented Lag B'Omer program.

On Saturday, adult and children's services begin at 9:45pm at 881 Broadview, with Rabbi Kaunfer presenting a D'var Torah. At 2:30pm, the Rabbi will hold a discussion group for 10 to 15 year olds at the home of Usher and Ellen Caplan (616 Fraser Ave.). Finally, at 8:15pm, there will be a discussion group dealing with women's role in Judaism, at the home of Cynthia Powell (2270 Cotters Cres. #218, Gloucester.)

Adath Shalom is an egalitarian Conservative synagogue affiliated with the United Synagogues of America. For more information, please call Cynthia Powell at 731-2463.

First Women's Shabbat

By Sylvia Greenspon

Adath Shalom held its first Women's Shabbat on March 5, 1994. To a standing room only crowd, 14 women who learned their parts from audio cassettes, led the congregation through the various parts of the service. They were assisted by two male congregants with the Torah reading and D'var Torah. Jonathan Wouk gave a fresh interpretation to the status of prophetesses and judges in the Bible.

For some women, there was difficulty in overcoming barriers of their youth which conditioned them to remain in the background when it came to leading a service. Laura Doliner and Judith Wouk introduced substitutions to prayers and psalms for references to God and man. Gender neutral terms such as Sovereign or Ruler replaced King. A list of other possibilities was provided. Adath Shalom had previously introduced the practice of naming matriarchs along with patriarchs in the Amidah.

Innovation may take a while to become accepted but the members are pleased with the first step in creating a truly egalitarian community. It is hoped these efforts will encourage more members to learn new skills.

The women involved are grateful to Leah Schnitzer for her inspiration and encouragement over the years and to Alma Norman for her example and tireless efforts. Without them, the Women's Shabbat would not have materialized.

מדינת ישראל

STATE OF ISRAEL

President Weizman's Independence Day Message to Communities Abroad 5754 - 1994

On its 46th Independence Day, Israel looks at its history and future with pride and hope. Pride at becoming an independent country, strong and vibrant, and hope for the chance to achieve peace after a century of wars and hostility. We share this pride and hope with our brethren and friends around the world.

Traditionally, Independence Day is a day of summing up and retrospection. We recall the days before the War of Independence, before the establishment of the State of Israel in 1948. We remember our history, more than two thousand years of exile and dependence, days when Jews prayed for their own homeland in which to live as a free nation.

In 46 years, Israel has become a nation of 5.3 million people. Israel has become the second largest Jewish community in the world and will soon be the largest. During this period we have succeeded in building a strong and viable economy. Israel exports goods to a value of 23 billion dollars a year. Israel's G.N.P. has reached 65 billion dollars. New factories are being built in Israel, new ventures are being undertaken and the future looks bright and promising.

In the last year alone, 77,000 new immigrants from the Russian Federation, the Independent Republics, Europe, South Africa, Latin America and North America came on Aliya and settled in Israel, making it their new home. This continual immigration has assisted the growing prosperity of the Israeli economy.

In my new capacity as President of Israel, I have been privileged to tour the country, meet its people and see its cities and villages. I cannot even try to share with you the striking impressions I draw from my visits. Only by seeing for oneself, can one truly become aware of the tremendous development taking place in Israel.

Independence Day is a day of reflection and pride in our achievements. It is also a day of reflection on what should still be achieved. There are places in Israel where further economic development is needed, where satisfactory housing is missing, where poverty reigns. Much has still to be done to make Israel a Promised Land for its people and for the Jewish world. I am sure that with the imminent achievement of peace and with the redirection of national resources, we will be able to realize the true meaning of Zionism.

The last year has witnessed the continuation of the peace process and the signing of the Declaration of Principles. Peace negotiations are being held between Israel and all its Arab neighbors. More than fifteen years ago, the first Peace Accord between Israel and its largest Arab neighbor, Egypt, was signed. Now years later we approach the widening of the peace cycle. Obstacles and hurdles are to be expected, but I am certain that peace is inevitable — is bound to come to our region.

It is my first year in office as President of Israel, and I wish to take this opportunity to address you on this day, not only on Israel and its achievements and targets, but also on the relations between Israel and Jewish communities in the world. Together we face the threat of assimilation and the loss of Jewish identity. We should direct our attention and resources to Jewish education and the preservation of our Jewish identity. A new partnership should be formed, a partnership of equality. We face new challenges which require unity. Only in unity and togetherness will we be able to face the end of the twentieth century and the beginning of the third millennium.

In conclusion, let us all look to the future. Israel today is stronger than ever before. Israel is a reality in the Middle East, with extensive economic and diplomatic relations with most of the countries in the world. We can look back with satisfaction, remembering that it was only 46 years ago that Jews had nowhere to go. The establishment of Israel is a victory of the Jewish people and the Jewish spirit. What better words can describe it than the old unforgettable words of Psalms:

בשוב ה' את שבת ציון, היינו כחלמים. או
שלא שחקו פינו ולשונונו רנה.
שובה ה' את שבותנו כאפיקים בנגב.
(תהילים קכ"ו)

When the Lord brought back the captivity of Zion, we were like men in a dream. Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing... Bring back our captivity, O Lord, like the streams in the Negev. (Psalms 126)

Thank you! Thank you! Thank you!

To each and every one who was so kind, generous and thoughtful with good wishes during my recent illness.

To everyone, I wish you good health.

Doris Koffman

Celebrating Jerusalem

"Gladden Jerusalem with gladness
And rejoice in her with deliverance and well-being..."

—Elcazar Kallir,
liturgical poet

For Jews throughout the ages, Jerusalem has meant much more than a real place in time and space. Along with Torah, Jerusalem has been and remains our eternal symbol of righteousness, wisdom, glory, love and ultimately, the moral unity of humanity.

City of David and home of Solomon's Temple, Jerusalem stands at the epicentre of our national and cultural heritage. We remember it in our daily prayers, in our times of gladness and our times of sadness.

Some scholars describe Jerusalem as the physical representation of the Jewish people and Jewish identity. Others say that Eretz Israel is the centre of the earth and Jerusalem is its "navel." For Kabbalists, the prayers of all Israel ascend to heaven from Jerusalem in a sort of in-gathering of prayer that parallels the Messianic concept of in-gathering of exiles. Underlying each of these concepts is belief in a permanent, direct link between Jerusalem, God and the Jewish people.

Small wonder, then, that the newest holiday in the Jewish calendar, 29 Iyar, is Yom Yerushalayim. In 1994 we commemorate the 27th anniversary of the unification of Jerusalem under Jewish political governance after close to 3000 years of political displacement.

The stories in the following book will help children understand what growing up in the Me'a She'arim district of Jerusalem was like between 1910 and 1954.

Golden Windows And Other Stories of Jerusalem

By Adele Geras
HarperCollins Publishers 1993
148 pps. Ages 8-12

Golden Windows And Other Stories of Jerusalem is a compilation of five beautifully written short stories. Although each story stands alone, the five are loosely linked in three ways.

First, a daughter of the extended Genzel family is the lead character in each story. Second, the theme of each story is that happiness results from human relationships, not material possessions. Third, is the absence of adult male family members.

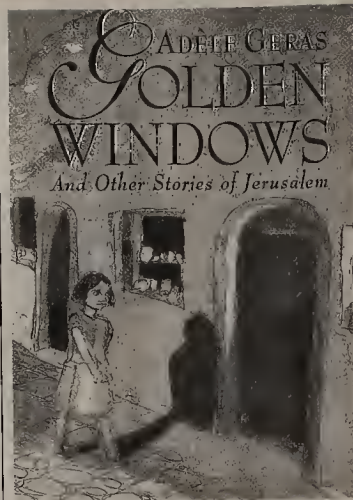

Rich in detail, feelings and imagery, the stories are about childhood dilemmas that are, in part, universal and, in part, specific to living in Jerusalem at a particular period in time.

We first meet the Genzel family in Golden Windows. It is 1910, Pnina, the eight year old daughter, is on her way home after buying challah for Shabbat when she is diverted by the play of light in an alley. Following the light she discovers "a window that seemed to have in it everything beautiful that was in the world" including the perfect birthday gift for sister Miriam. Dilemma one: the perfect gift for Miriam is something Pnina also wants for herself.

Dilemma two: the shop is owned by two scary-looking, elderly sisters. How Pnina relates to these women and they to her quickly becomes another driving force in the story.

In the second story, A Garden With Rabbits, we meet Pnina and her sister Miriam two years later. This time Pnina is in charge of taking Miriam for daily walks. Where they walk, what they encounter and how they each react are the anchoring questions for this story.

Stories three and four, Beyond the Cross-Stitch Mountains and Dreams of Fire set in 1948 and 1950 are especially compelling. Focusing on the relationship between Pnina's niece, Daskeh, and her younger neighbor, Danny, the stories are played out against the background and lingering aftermath of Israel's War of Independence.

The last story is set in 1954. Cardboard Boxes Full of America features Pnina's great-niece Malka. Malka's dilemma over friendship is contrasted with the strength of family relationships, family in Israel and family in America who send much needed, greatly prized clothes parcels.

In sum, Golden Windows And Other Stories of Jerusalem is a poignant insightful book that combines vivid description and imagery with masterful understatement. Its tales of childhood dilemmas are as real, universal, haunting and timeless as the streets, alleys, shadows and light of Jerusalem itself.

May our celebrations of Jerusalem Day on May 9, 1994 show the world that it is indeed a very special time of Jewish gladness!

Munchkins join the action

Wizard of Oz rehearsals into final stage

By Pat Neuman

Co-Producer, JCC Theatreworks

The 50 teen and pre-teen actors and singers preparing for the upcoming JCC Theatreworks production of Wizard of Oz have been working hard for the last two months. Oz, the seventh annual JCC teen play, will have four performances at Centrepointe Theatre on May 11-15.

The youngster who play Munchkins have just joined the rehearsals in earnest and are winning the hearts of everyone who sees them in action. These young singers and dancers aged 9-11 are displaying talent and discipline well beyond their years.

This is the first time that JCC Theatreworks has involved pre-teens in its productions, and these young performers are adding an extra degree of energy and enthusiasm to an already high-powered show.

The talented group of teens appearing in the main cast and chorus are now working on polishing their various scenes and song and dance numbers. As curtain time approaches, rehearsals, which had taken place three times a week at the JCC, have now gone to four times a week. The adrenaline is high and everyone is caught up in the thrill of being involved in a great show.

Marlene Hudson has taken over as musical director, replacing her husband Drum Hudson, who begins work on another Ophelus production. Most of the production staff are JCC Theatreworks veterans and all are very experienced members of the Ottawa theatre scene.

The musical-play version of The Wizard of Oz ingeniously adapts many of the "tricks" used in the beloved MGM movie. Talented set designer Scotty Mitchell has built some clever structures from construction rigs, and these are now being used in the rehearsal hall of the JCC.

The play also includes the wonderful songs from the movie, many of which are still sung and played for their own special timeless appeal outside the context of the film.

One of the more popular numbers with the kids is the upbeat "Jitterbug" scene which was filmed for the MGM movie as a dance number for the Cowardly Lion, but was deleted from the final version. The cast is perfecting a newly choreographed live version of this exciting song.

Oz is one of the most elaborate productions presented by JCC Theatreworks, and the backstage crew will be larger than usual to ensure a smooth-running show. Volunteers are still needed to help with the move into Centrepointe Theatre and with various backstage jobs, including costumes, make-up and sets. Anyone interested in working in the state-of-the-art Centrepointe Theatre should call Fay at the JCC, 789-1818. Both teens and adults would be most welcome.

Another first for this production is that the school matinee is already completely sold out! Sales are also brisk for the other performances — the evenings of May 11 and 12 and the matinee on Sunday, May 15 — but good tickets are still available.

Prime Patron seats can be purchased by calling the JCC at 789-1818. Patron tickets are $36.00; patrons have their names listed in the official program and receive a tax receipt for $21.00.

Regular tickets are $15.00 (or $9.00 for the preview performance on Wednesday evening, May 11) and may be purchased by calling the Centrepointe box office at 727-6650.

New athletic award in memory of Sharon Koffman

The Jewish Community Centre will introduce a new athletic award at its Annual Meeting and Awards Night on June 1, 1994. The Sharon Koffman Athletic Award will be presented annually to an athlete — varsity age or older — who exhibits a spirit of sportsmanship, participation and dedication to personal goals of excellence.

It has been donated in memory of Sharon Koffman, by loving family and friends, in the hope that it will embody and keep alive the spirit of this very remarkable woman.

The Sharon Koffman Athletic Award honours the spirit of athletics in its purest form, participation not to win awards or break records but simply for the joy of achieving one's personal best. This award hopes to inspire the potential athlete in all of us.

Nominations Being Accepted for The Sharon Koffman Athletic Award

Purpose of the Award

To recognize outstanding sportsmanship, participation and dedication to personal goals of excellence by an athlete of varsity age or older. This award will be presented at the JCC Annual Meeting and Awards Night on June 1, 1994.

Nominations

Nominations shall be submitted to the Selection Committee by Wednesday, May 18, 1994 and shall include a resume of the nominee's involvement in athletic activities.

Send nominations to: JCC Sharon Koffman Athletic Award Selection Committee, 151 Chapel Street, Ont., K1N 7Y2

M'in Ha' Merkaz

From the Centre

By Carol Kassie
President, Jewish Community Centre

Recently I was asked: "Why should I pay a membership fee to join the JCC? After all, you get one of the largest UJA allocations in the community. Why do you need the extra money? 151 Chapel Street is falling apart, and I don't go there very often anyway."

It is true that the JCC receives a large portion of UJA dollars, almost $477,000, for which we are most appreciative. But more than 50% of that allocation is immediately given back to the community in the rents we pay at 151 Chapel Street and 881 and 831 Broadview Avenue.

With the remaining monies we must program to meet the needs of the entire Ottawa Jewish Community. Yom Ha'Atzmaut, Arts Alive, Jewish Music Month, the Israeli Film Festival, the teen play — these are a few of the city-wide events that the JCC produces every year. Although some of these programs are, at this point, almost self-sustaining, many are not. The JCC must absorb these expenses.

Our staff have all become experts on budgeting and cost cutting without damaging the integrity of our programs. And although we instituted a 'user pay' system a few years ago, if we charged too much more for these programs, we might discourage people from participating.

The JCC is currently running well over 100 programs which take place at 151 Chapel (we are, along with the Property Management Board, hoping to 'perk up' the building a little bit!), the two Broadview sites, and at several other locations around the city. We still depend on your membership fees to help defray some costs.

Shir-Am

There is a new choral group on Tuesday mornings at the JCC. Shirley Steinberg's Shir-Am group has over 15 members and sounds wonderful. Most participants have never had any formal musical training but are really enjoying the experience of learning Jewish folk songs of all kinds — Hebrew, Yiddish and even Ladino.

The group is open to all members of the community. Join them at 11:00 a.m. and then stay for a delicious lunch at our Drop-In Diner.

The Wizard of Oz

There are 'munchkins' at the JCC! The rehearsals for JCC Theatreworks' production of The Wizard of Oz are well underway. The performances will take place on Wednesday, May 11 and Thursday, May 12 at 8:00 p.m., and on Sunday, May 15 at 2:00 p.m. and tickets are on sale now at Centrepointhe Theatre, 727-6650.

Thank you

A special vote of thanks to Perry and Arlene Medico for the work they did as chairmen of Yom Ha'Atzmaut. All who participated enjoyed the evening and we appreciate the time and effort that these 'honeymooners' devoted to it!

Paula Speevak Sladowski was recently offered and has accepted a position as Executive Director of the Ottawa Central Volunteer Bureau. Paula has been a much valued and respected member of the JCC staff for nine years. She is innovative, imaginative and resourceful, and we know that she will bring these qualities to her new position. We will miss her here at the JCC, and we wish her 'mazel tov' and hope to see her at the Centre often.

AYJA a hit with young adults

Over seventy young Jewish adults, both singles and couples, gathered together at Yuk Yuk's for a great evening organized by AYJA, the Association of Young Jewish Adults.

The featured entertainer was Larry Horowitz, a hot, young comedian from Montreal. Obviously aware that at least half his audience was Jewish, he added some seasonal rabbi, Passover and seder jokes to his usual repertoire. He got a great response from the crowd.

AYJA was formed by the JCC a few months ago to bring together young Jewish people, both single and married, in the under 35 age range — people who are, for the most part, out of university and wanting to make contact with other young adults in the Ottawa Jewish community.

The tremendous response to AYJA's first few programs indicates that there is a great need for such a group in Ottawa. "What I like about AYJA," one participant at Yuk Yuk's commented, "is that it is not a singles group, so my wife and I feel comfortable coming out and meeting new people, singles, couples or whatever."

AYJA president Elayna Katz

agrees. "We just wanted to organize a group that would bring young adults together to have a good time," she explains.

"Sometimes it's really hard for people in this age group to make contact. I was born here, yet I know there are lots of new people coming to Ottawa all the time. AYJA is a way for people to meet new people, renew old friendships and make new ones."

Watch Centrefold for the next AYJA program coming in May. For more information about AYJA call JCC Co-ordinator Esther Schvan at 595-1076.

PORTRAIT OF AN ARTIST

Featuring members of the Jewish Artists' Guild

DAVID MAKOW

David Makow is a pioneer in a new medium of art, liquid crystals and thin films. For the last 16 years he has explored ways in which liquid crystals can be introduced into the visual arts, and has patented some of his discoveries. His innovative work has been featured on many television programs, including CTV's Sunday Edition.

Dr. Makow has had a lifelong interest in the visual arts. He has taken courses in a wide variety of media — painting, sculpture, ceramics, film — and has exhibited in both group and one-man shows since 1970. However his primary career for most of his life has been in the sciences. He was born in Poland and earned degrees in electrical engineering and physics, in Zurich Switzerland, then emigrated to Canada to join the National Research Council.

At the NRC, among the many areas of his work were applications of ultrasound to medicine. In 1988, he received the Pioneer's Award from the World Federation of Ultrasound in Medicine for contributions to the development of diagnostic ultrasound techniques.

His science and art backgrounds merged when he started to use liquid crystal (LC's) in his artwork. Liquid crystals have unique visual properties. These include: more colour possibilities than obtainable through pigments, including new colours; more brilliance; more colour permanence; additive colour properties (i.e. colours add like coloured lights); colour changes with the angle of viewing; and, in some LC's, colour changes with room temperature.

Dr. Makow has used these special properties of liquid crystals to create striking effects in his paintings and sculptures. The angle of viewing effect is especially striking in sculptures and reliefs and the temperature dependence in paintings. Together they make his work respond to the viewer and to the environment and impart a kinetic quality to his art.

David Makow has given lectures on his new techniques around the world and has written numerous articles on his work with liquid crystals. He exhibits frequently at the Glass Art Gallery in Toronto, the Montreal Gallery of Contemporary Art, the National Capital Network of Sculptures at the Ottawa School of Art and at other special exhibits.

He has also had individual shows at the former York Gallery, Ottawa City Hall, and at the university campuses of Kent State, Carleton, UBC and Western.

His works are held in various collections including the Jack Ward collection of New York, the Faber Birren collection, the Loeb collection and the collection in the NRC's National Science Library (CISTI) where his thin film sculpture was unveiled recently for permanent display.

David Makow has also exhibited with the Jewish Artists' Guild at its 1993 Arts Alive Show, Genesis.

The Jewish Artists' Guild is very pleased to announce that Dr. David Makow will give the annual JAG lecture to the community on Thursday, June 2 at the Jewish Community Centre. He will explain his innovative art techniques, using slides and other visuals, and will present examples of his work. Everyone is invited to attend this fascinating lecture.

Camps for all kinds of kids

By Estelle Melzer

Still wondering what to do with the kids this summer? The JCC has a wide variety of quality camps to meet the needs and interests of your youngsters and to make their summer fun and exciting.

Our specialty camps at 151 Chapel, Sports Camp and Theatre Arts Camp, have been offering very high quality programs with excellent instructors for years.

Sports Camp, for kids aged 7 to 12, is designed to promote confidence and skill in a really wide variety of sports, but most of all, to foster a love of sports. Kids get a chance to participate in over 21 sports, both traditional and recreational.

The instructors are top quality. Some such as former World Windsurfing Champion Carol-Anne Allie are the best in the business. All instructors and counsellors are chosen for their ability to relate to kids and make camp a positive experience.

Spaces are going fast for this popular camp. If you want your child to participate in this program, register now.

Theatre Arts Camp, for children aged 8 to 13, offers instruction in the performing and fine arts in a warm, confidence-building atmosphere. Classes are given in ballet, jazz dance, drama and fine arts, in an integrated program geared towards a performance at the end of camp. Different levels of ability and skill are accommodated in a relaxed environment where the emphasis is on fun.

JCC Day Camp, at 881 Broadview, offers fun-filled programs for kids aged 3 - 12 and a caring, warm staff. Each day is different, with lots of surprises, trips, and theme days. It's a great place to hang out with your friends and to make new friends. JCC Day Camp is a real family camp. Kids and counsellors know each other and each camper is made to feel like he or she belongs.

Explorers is a new program this year for young teens entering Grade 9. Explorers introduces campers to the many aspects of their society and community through hands on experiences. In the morning, campers will meet people and participate in activities related to the media, the law, politics, the arts community, etc. In the afternoon, they will enjoy leisure activities which they help plan.

All JCC programs, both at Broadview and Chapel Street, offer Red Cross swim instruction, and youngsters, who usually swim twice a day, quickly advance through the levels.

If you are looking for a fun-filled experience for your children this summer - a place where they can learn and grow and make lasting friendships - take another look at JCC Summer Camp. For more information call the JCC at 789-1818.

Menopause
and hormone replacement

By Dr. Mark S. Silverman

Menopause, often called "the change of life" usually occurs between the ages of 48 and 55. Though it literally means the last menstrual period, it is often used to refer to the numerous changes which occur in a woman's physiology around this time.

During the one or two years leading up to menopause, decreasing hormone levels may cause changes in a woman's body, including changes in menstrual periods, hot flashes, insomnia, mood swings, irritability, vaginal dryness and frequent urination. Over 75% of women experience one or more menstrual symptoms, though less than one quarter seek medical help.

Hormone replacement therapy refers to the use of estrogen and progesterone to replace the body's natural supply, which is greatly reduced at the time of menopause. A short course of hormone therapy may relieve the uncomfortable symptoms associated with menopause. However, it is the long-term use of these hormones for the prevention of osteoporosis and heart disease that has been of prime concern to endocrinologists (internal medicine specialists in hormones).

Osteoporosis is defined as a loss of bone mass. Bones become porous, fragile and brittle. As many as 40% of women may develop this condition due to the reduced estrogen levels after menopause. Osteoporosis causes fractures in the vertebrae (spine), causing height loss in older women. As well, most hip fractures occur in patients with this disease. Although increasing dietary calcium and physical activity will decrease the loss of bone mass somewhat, estrogen therapy has been shown to reduce the risk of wrist, spine and hip fractures by over 50%. Other risks for osteoporosis include: white race, slender build or short stature, little exercise, poor diet, alcohol and smoking.

Recent studies have conclusively shown that estrogen therapy can reduce the risk of heart disease and stroke by up to 50%. Before menopause, women have a much lower risk for these conditions, due to their high levels of estrogen. After menopause, women rapidly "catch-up" to men with respect to the risk of heart disease. Though much of this protection is due to changes in fractions of cholesterol (increasing the "good" HDL and decreasing the "bad" LDL), there is also a direct effect of estrogen on the heart itself. Hormone therapy is especially helpful in women with preexisting heart disease, or with other major risks for its development: smoking, diabetes, high blood pressure or high cholesterol.

Estrogen must be given with progesterone, in order to prevent an increased risk for uterine cancer. This risk does not apply in women who have had their uterus removed (hysterectomy).

The most popular estrogen replacement therapy involves the use of conjugated estrogen (Premarin), or estrogen skin patches, with the addition of a progesterone (Provera) for part of the month, in order to shed the lining of the uterus. This causes monthly bleeding, but the flow is usually much less than that seen during the reproductive years. Newer therapies are being investigated, including taking both estrogen and progesterone daily. Common side effects of hormone replacement therapy include some pre-menstrual-like symptoms at certain times of the cycle. These are usually temporary. Women with a history of breast or uterine cancer must not receive hormone therapy, nor women with blood clotting disorders or liver disease.

At present, only 15% of post-menopausal women in Canada are taking hormone replacement therapy. The fear of breast cancer is one of the major reasons for this. At present, there are no conclusive studies confirming that estrogen therapy increases the risk of this disease. The chances of a Canadian woman developing heart disease without estrogen therapy are much greater than her risk of developing breast cancer with it. There is a 3% risk of dying from breast cancer, compared with a 35% risk of dying from vascular disease.

The increased use of hormone replacement therapy would greatly decrease the ravages of heart disease and osteoporosis.

Mark Silverman, M.D., F.R.C.P.(C), F.A.C.P., is an endocrinologist and internist who recently returned to Ottawa after six years in Halifax, Burlington, Vt and Pittsburgh, Pa. His medical interests include diabetes, cholesterol and thyroid disease.

Small Business Loan Act

By Lawrence Zinman

On April 1, 1993, a new improved Small Business Loans Act (SBLA) went into operation. This popular and effective government program is an excellent example of public and private sectors co-operating to provide needed financing to small business. In the last five years, 71,000 loans for $2.7 billion have been made under the SBLA.

The SBLA is designed to help new and existing small businesses obtain term loans from chartered banks and other lenders toward financing the purchase and improvement of fixed assets. Loans are made directly by the borrower and the government is not involved in approving the loan. The lender will decide if you are eligible to receive a loan under the SBLA.

A small business is an enterprise operating for profit, with an estimated gross revenue not exceeding $5 million during the fiscal year in which the business improvement loan application is made. This includes professional practices, but excludes farming, renting or purchase or resale of real estate, and charitable or religious enterprises.

Business improvement loans are available for the purpose of financing:

- The purchase of land necessary for the operating of a business enterprise and the renovation, improvement, modernization, extension, construction, and/or purchase of premises.
- The purchase, installation, renovation, improvement and/or modernization of new or used equipment.

Business improvement loans are not available for the purpose of financing, the acquisition of shares, working capital (i.e. inventory, accounts receivable, etc.) and existing debt, with the exception of refinancing fixed asset purchases made up to 180 days prior to the loan application.

FOCUS ON FINANCE

The new and improved program has four new features which can help a business replenish or preserve its working capital:

- Refinancing of fixed assets purchased up to 180 days was not previously permitted.
- 100% of the cost of fixed assets is eligible for financing at the discretion of lenders.
- Personal guarantees of an individual borrower are limited to 25% of the original loan amount, and such guarantees cannot be secured with personal assets.
- The government guarantees 90% of the loan.

The maximum amount of loan per borrower may not exceed $250,000. For floating rate loans, the rate of interest cannot exceed prime plus 1.75%. Borrowers pay a one time administration fee of 2% of the loan, which may be added to the amount of the loan. The maximum period over which a business improvement loan may be repaid may not exceed the economic life of the asset being financed up to a maximum of 10 years.

Borrowers must be aware that the government guarantee does not replace their 25% personal guarantee. Before the lender realizes any government guarantee, the individual must first attempt to realize the personal guarantee of the borrower.

ART

Pagurek's art reflects family life

As Cheryl Pagurek, an Ottawa-born artist and sculptor pursued her art, she began "doing a lot of groupings" of her works. This eventually led to installations.

After taking up photography she combined the two skills to produce a new and unusual art form.

Pagurek is interested in the home as a seat of personal identity — a place shaped by and giving shape to individual experience.

In building installations of domestic rooms and later photographing them, her aim was to use objects of domestic comfort to convey the unselfconscious pleasure of family life.

In her most recent installation and photo exhibit which is on view at the Agnes Etherington Art Centre in Kingston until May 22, Pagurek has faithfully and lovingly reproduced her grandparents' living room. Bill and Jennie Lieback were Polish Jews who left Europe shortly before the Second World War and came to Canada.

Pagurek explains her motivation for the use of personal history in 5 Fraserwood Ave., Apt. #2:

"I wish to explore the ways in which my grandparents' immigrant experience and personal losses determined the domestic environment with which they have surrounded themselves in later life. The particular ornate and flowery character of their home reflects their conception of 'success' and 'comfort.' Their living room of gilt fixings, busy combinations of patterns and colors, and highly embellished furniture represents all that is opposite to the bleakness of their past hardships as immigrants finding their way in a new country, of losing their families during the Second World War."

The photographs that accompany the Fraserwood installation add layers of references by documenting the fabricated "living room" at sites in Victoria, where the artist lives.

The installation was set up in a Jewish cemetery, on an industrial roof top and within the artist's own living space with a projection of a garment factory interior.

The cemetery is a meeting point of past and future, of the memory of those who have died and awareness of our own inevitable deaths. The Jewish cemetery carries additional reference to what Pagurek describes as the "constant presence" of the Holocaust.

The loss of family members in the cataclysm of World War II fostered a strong awareness of death among those who escaped alive — almost an intimacy with death.

This talented young artist, now 26, grew up in Ottawa where she attended Merivale High School and Temple Israel Religious School. She studied art at Merivale and the Ottawa School of Art. While studying for her Bachelor's and Master's degrees in Fine Arts, she spent her summers giving art instruction to young people, including a stint as Arts and Crafts Director at the JCC Day Camp.

Cheryl is the daughter of Joyce and Bernard Pagurek.

ART

Art Works / Rose Ann Hoffenberg

Marc Chagall, The Eiffel Tower, 1923, National Gallery of Canada

Marc Chagall was to make many major moves in his life but he always drew inspiration from his native Russia and his Jewish tradition. He spent four years studying in Paris and then returned to Russia to marry Bella Rosenfeld.

His plans to bring his bride back to France were postponed by the outbreak of World War I. He tried to make a life for himself and even made a minimal contribution to the war effort, but finally, it was Russia's intolerance of Jews that acted as the catalyst for his leaving Russia permanently.

Chagall went to Berlin in 1922 and was introduced to the works of the German Expressionists Nolde, Marc, Kirchner and Beckman. However, he was still anxious to return to France and readily accepted a commission which took him back to Paris in the summer of 1923.

This was a most prolific period for Chagall and resulted in exhibitions in Paris, London and New York. The artist was enjoying the calm after the storms of war and revolution. His imagery was linked to his psychological state of mind and in the 1920s he produced a steady stream of happy pictures. The subject of the Eiffel Tower is love — love for Bella, for Paris, for nature, for painting.

Symbols of Chagall's Russian past flash like neon signs transmitted through the vibrant palette. The lively figure of a rooster in the foreground is wearing a cap, has a bouquet of flowers for a tail, and is playing the violin.

The rooster is reminiscent of a story book he illustrated called With Rooster in 1917 and it is also associated with the Day of Atonement. The violin is played at Jewish weddings but has a more personal association. Chagall himself had learned the instrument and remained a music lover throughout his life, often playing records while he painted.

The love scene is complete with an angel flying very near the sun.

The stylization of the nude figure of Bella is pasted on the flat divan as a child might depict her. It is interesting to view Chagall's sketch book of nudes which reveals naturalistic drawings of his models, and then to look on the opposite sheet where they are transformed by his reversing the pose and making stylistic alterations.

Bella, the divan and the playful rooster with its violin are surrounded by vegetation and together they anchor down the rest of the composition which is soaring to the sky. The Eiffel tower extends beyond our sight as does the large, brilliantly coloured sun.

The scene is a celebration of color dominated by the red and yellow sun, which is reflected in the pink vaporous sky and the yellow tower. These warm colors are contrasted with the cool blues, greens and purples below.

The 1930s marked a decade of travel for the Chagall family. They were invited to Palestine by the mayor of Tel Aviv, Meier Dizengoff. This trip resulted in a large series of Bible paintings. Their travels continued in Holland, Spain, Poland and Italy in order to appreciate the 'old masters'.

Just as Chagall's paintings of the 1920s were marked with fluid lines, radiant colors and soft contours, his paintings of the 1930s showed harsher colors and stiffer lines as the tragedy of the Jews in Europe increased. The Chagalls were once again displaced from their home when they escaped from the Nazis in 1941 and spent the remainder of the war years in the United States. Marc Chagall was never to accept America as his home. In fact, although he spent seven years there, he never learned to speak English.

Simple asparagus is best asparagus

Asparagus is considered the king of the gardening world. This member of the lily family is now available from early spring through summer. It's best when cooked simply: broiled, steamed or sautéed, but is also a wonderful addition to soups, strudels and casseroles. They are best when picked young, before the stems become too woody. To keep fresh, cut $\frac{1}{2}$ " from the woody stalk and place in a narrow container with 1" of water in the bottom. Cover with a plastic bag and refrigerate. They will keep for several days.

Asparagus Strudel

Can be prepared several hours to 1 day ahead. Wrap tightly and store in fridge. Bake just before serving.

48 thin stalks asparagus
1 lg. scallion
1 Tbsp. chopped fresh dill or 1 tsp. dried
1 Tbsp. chopped fresh parsley or 1 tsp. dried
2 Tbsp. olive oil
1 leek, white part only, cut into thin slivers and washed well
 $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sliced almonds, toasted
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup coarsely grated Swiss cheese
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sour cream or yogurt
1 large egg, lightly beaten
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt
 $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. pepper
8 sheets phyllo
6 Tbsp. butter, melted
Favourite fresh tomato sauce (optional)

Cut ends of asparagus. Rinse. Heat $\frac{1}{2}$ " water in large skillet and cook asparagus 3 minutes. Drain and cool. Dry skillet and reserve for later. Cut off 2" tips of asparagus and set aside. In processor, puree remaining ends of asparagus with scallion, dill and parsley. Heat oil in skillet. Cook leeks for 2 minutes. Add asparagus puree and cook, covered for 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of the almonds. In a small bowl combine sour cream, grated cheese, egg, salt and pepper. Stir in warm asparagus mixture. Set aside. Heat oven to 350 degrees. Unfold phyllo and cover with a damp cloth. (Recover each time a sheet is removed.) Place 1 sheet on a flat surface. Brush very lightly with melted butter. Cover with another sheet and brush lightly with melted butter. Repeat twice more for a total of 4 sheets. Cut lengthwise in half and each piece width-wise in half. Repeat process with remaining 4 sheets of phyllo. Divide asparagus mixture among 8 stacks of phyllo, spreading it along the short end of each stack. Fold both long ends over about $\frac{1}{2}$ " of the asparagus mixture and roll up dough to enclose filling. Place 3 asparagus tips into each end of each roll and place on foil lined baking sheet. Brush tops with butter and bake in preheated 350 degrees oven for 10-12 minutes or until golden brown. Can be served with a tomato sauce coulis if desired. Makes a wonderful appetizer. Serves 8.

SOUP TO NUTS

Grilled Asparagus

16 large asparagus spears
2 Tbsp. olive oil
Pinch salt & pepper
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup extra virgin olive oil
1 lemon, quartered

Heat BBQ grill. Toss asparagus with 2 Tbsp. olive oil and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Grill asparagus over medium hot grill, about 5 minutes, turning spears until skin starts to shrivel and gets tightly charred all over. Test with the tip of a knife in the centre of the largest part of the stalk. It should be soft in the centre. Transfer to plates and drizzle with the extra virgin olive oil. Squeeze fresh lemon over and serve immediately. Serves 4.

Stir Fried Lamb with Asparagus

1 lb. piece of boneless lamb
1 lb. thin fresh asparagus
1 medium onion, sliced
 $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. fresh mushrooms, wiped clean and sliced
1 small red pepper
1 piece fresh gingerroot
1 clove fresh garlic
2 Tbsp. soy sauce
1 Tbsp. dry sherry
1 Tbsp. honey
2 tsp. cornstarch
 $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. crushed red pepper
 $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. vegetable oil

Trim and discard all fat from lamb. Cut into $\frac{1}{4}$ " thick slices x 1" strips. Break off ends of asparagus stems. Cut spears into 2" lengths, keeping the tips separate. Cut red pepper into strips. Slice ginger into thin slices and stack.

Slice into thin matchstick pieces. Finely chop garlic. Set aside. Combine soy sauce, sherry, honey, corntarch and crushed red pepper in small bowl. In large skillet, heat 1 Tbsp. of the oil over medium high heat. Add asparagus, without tips and stir fry along with onion slices for 3 minutes.

Add tips and stir fry for 2 minutes more, until crisp-tender. Transfer to bowl. Add 1 Tbsp. oil to skillet and heat on high heat. Add red pepper strips and cook 2 more minutes.

Stir soy sauce mixture and stir into mushrooms and peppers. Cook until thickened. Return lamb with vegetables along with any juices and stir fry 1 minute to heat through. Serve with steamed rice. Serves 4.

SPECIAL

JEWISH LIFE IN TSARIST RUSSIA

Exhibition of a world rediscovered is coming to New York

By David Kriger

Jewish life in early 20th century Russia is the focus of a new exhibition coming next fall to the Jewish Museum of New York. Jewish Life in Tsarist Russia: A World Rediscovered — from the Jewish Collections of the State Ethnographic Museum in St. Petersburg (the former Soviet State Collection) is a remarkable collection of artifacts, folk lore and photographs from the Pale of Settlement.

The collection was assembled mainly in the years preceding the Russian Revolution, by teams working under the direction of Shlomo An-sky (Shlomo Zanvil Rapoport) and was supplemented by other holdings and collections from the Soviet State Collections in a number of cities. An-sky — best known as the author of The Dybbuk — and his colleagues captured both the last years of centuries-old traditions and the beginnings of the modern era. The exhibition is slated to run from late October 1994 through April 1995.

We seem to talk about Russian Jewry in terms of openings. When I was growing up in the '60s and '70s, we could get only glimpses of Jewish life under the Soviet regime — provided by intrepid travellers or by the lucky few who got out. Then, under glasnost and the disintegration of the Soviet Union in the 1980s, windows became gateways — to Israel and to freedom. Soon after, we began to hear about synagogues re-opening in the spiritual barrens of Moscow. Today, however, one wonders whether we may be relegated again to looking through windows, as economic and political turmoil in Russia clouds over the future.

Roots of our community

Our own community has been enriched by new families from the former Soviet empire. They have helped us learn more about the continuity of the Jewish spirit under oppressive regimes — and, in turn, about where most of our grandparents came from.

But here the windows on what we know start to close. What was Jewish life like before the Soviet regime? Under what conditions did our great-grandparents live, before coming to places like Ottawa? How did their surroundings and culture shape the traditions that we observe today?

Folk painting of a Pesach Seder

—Rivka Goren
Curator, Israel Museum

By the time it comes to New York, Jewish Life in Tsarist Russia will have been on the road two years, with showings in Amsterdam, Cologne and Frankfurt, and the Israel Museum in Jerusalem. I just missed the European version of the exhibition — entitled Tracing An-sky — at the Jewish Museum in Frankfurt last fall, but I was able to purchase the exhibition's catalogue.

The catalogue describes a poignant memoir of a long-vanished world. Like the Precious Legacy, this exhibition contains ceramic menorahs, silver kiddush cups and other familiar artifacts of Jewish ritual and tradition particular to a time and place.

But An-sky's ethnographers fastidiously documented how the Jews of Russia lived from day to day. The ethnographers listened to folk tales about everyday life and collected folk art such as luboks (paper prints of biblical scenes.) They photographed shtetls, families and synagogues; weddings, shoemakers at work and children at heder. They collected pinkassim (record books) of charitable societies and entire communities. The ethnographers took down folk remedies and oaths for curing the full range of human maladies.

Costumes for Purim

The teams drew sketches of costumes and sets for Purim shpiln (Purim plays), and were given ritual attire (ranging from talesim to kitels) and everyday clothing. There are klezmer instruments, and photographs of the musicians who played them. An-sky's ethnographers even recorded the special Shabbat and holiday foods typical of the era (and of ours, too!) All of this, plus photographs, stories and background articles about the ethnographers is recorded in the catalogue.

The history of the collection is testimony to the trials and tribulations of the people it describes. According to the catalogue, the current holdings represent the net of additions made over the years; misplaced boxes and crates; the ravages of the Second World War, in which significant portions of the collection were destroyed under attack; and, state-sanctioned anti-Semitism. The collection was exhibited once, in 1939. The current tour is the first time that the collection has been shown in the West.

An-sky and his ethnographers recognized the times for what they were: the end of centuries of tradition. As the shtetls of the Pale came under the crossfire of the First World War, An-sky gathered remnants of Torah scrolls and community records, all describing a rapidly vanishing way of life. Could he have foreseen the destruction of the Holocaust, or the miracle of modern Israel?

The collection, assembled under a professional yet sympathetic eye, gives us back a piece of our past. That is no mean feat.

Pope puts relations with Jews at top of agenda

NEW YORK (JTA) — Pope John Paul II has put Catholic-Jewish relations high on his ecumenical agenda, moving on theological and diplomatic fronts to strengthen ties between the Vatican and Israel and to stress the shared history between the two faiths.

In recent interviews and public statements, the Holy See has described Jews as "our elder brothers in the faith," and anti-Semitism as "anti-Christian."

As spiritual leader of nearly 1 billion Catholics for more than 15 years, he has built on the foundations laid down by the Second Vatican Council in the 1960s, and has continued to pursue what many say is his own long-held personal commitment to improving relations between Catholics and Jews.

But it is the pope's recent recognition of the right of Jews to settle in Israel that has defined the recent sea change in Catholic-Jewish relations.

"It must be understood that Jews, who for 2,000 years have been dispersed among the nations of the world, had decided to return to the land of their ancestors. This is their right," said the 73-year-old leader in an interview with Parade magazine, an American mass-circulation weekly.

Relations with Israel

These comments, published in the magazine's Easter edition, follow the establishment of formal diplomatic relations between Israel and the Vatican last December, a move which was pushed forward by the pope himself.

Under his leadership, the Vatican has also dropped its insistence that Jerusalem be declared an international city, tacitly accepting a united Jerusalem under Israeli sovereignty.

And for the first time, the pope has sponsored the first official Vatican commemoration of the Holocaust. An international concert attended by dignitaries from around the world took place on Yom Hashoah, April 7. (See accompanying article.)

According to many observers, formal recognition of Israel removed what had been a major stumbling block to Catholic-Jewish relations, clearing the way for the kind of overtures that the pope continues to set in motion.

Rabbi A. James Rudin, head of interreligious affairs for the American Jewish Committee, said recent statements reflect a position that has been building since the pope's election in 1978.

These efforts, Rudin said, are an attempt to craft an enlightened notion among Catholics of the real historic relationship between the two groups.

"He's not talking to Jews about the Jewish religion; he's speaking to Catholics," Rudin said.

In 1979, the pope returned to his native Poland to visit Auschwitz, where he knelt before a Hebrew inscription to pray for the victims of the Nazi concentration camp.

He became the first pope to visit a Jewish house of worship when, in 1986, he gave an address at the Rome synagogue.

Pope joins survivors at commemoration concert

VATICAN CITY (JTA) — Highlighting the Roman Catholic Church's commitment to the fight against renewed anti-Semitism, Pope John Paul II joined Holocaust survivors at a concert April 7 commemorating the Shoah.

On the eve of Yom Hashoah, Holocaust Remembrance Day, thousands gathered in the Vatican's Paul VI auditorium to hear the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London pay tribute to the six million Jewish victims of the war. The concert marked the first time since the end of WWII that the Vatican has commemorated the Holocaust.

It followed the establishment in December of diplomatic ties between the Vatican and Israel.

The 7,500 guests included the chief rabbi of Rome, Elio Toaff; Avi Pazner, Israel's ambassador to Rome; Italian President Oscar Luigi Scalfaro; and representatives of Catholic and Jewish groups from around the world.

Before the concert, in a meeting with about 100 survivors and their families who came from 12 different countries, the pope expressed hope that listening to music together would confirm the shared resolve of Catholics and Jews "to consolidate the good relations between our two communities so that, with the help of Almighty God, we can work together to prevent the repetition of such heinous evil."

American Jewish conductor Gilbert Levine led the Royal Philharmonic in Max Bruch's setting of the Yom Kippur prayer "Kol Nidrei," with cellist Lynn Harrell as soloist.

The Cappella Giulia Choir of St. Peter's Basilica sang a setting for Psalm 92 in Hebrew composed by Franz Schubert for the inauguration of a synagogue in Vienna in 1826.

Oscar-winning actor Richard Dreyfuss narrated parts of Leonard Bernstein's "Kaddish," and the program also included selections from Bernstein's "Chichester Psalms" in Hebrew.

The concert opened with a brief ceremony in which Holocaust survivors lit six candles in memory of each million who perished.

Following the performance, the pope called for a moment of silence to "hear the voices of those who say 'do not forget us.'"

The concert was the brainchild of conductor Levine, a Long Island native whose mother-in-law survived Auschwitz.

Levine is conductor laureate of the Philharmonic Orchestra of Krakow and acts as one of the pope's musical advisers.

Two years ago, Levine suggested the idea of a concert commemorating the Holocaust to the pope, who then offered to hold it at the Vatican.

Funding for the concert came from both Catholic and Jewish sources, including $50,000 donated by Holocaust survivors.

Jews are nervous but hopeful on eve of South African elections

JOHANNESBURG (JTA) — South African Jews face the country's first democratic elections on April 27 with a mixture of fear and faith in the future.

The fears among the approximately 100,000 members of the South African Jewish community primarily relate to the widespread increase in criminal violence, particularly in Johannesburg, where over half the country's Jews live.

The Jewish community has also reacted with concern to recent politically related violence and, to a lesser extent, to the economic uncertainty facing the country.

Only a few years ago, the Jewish community here numbered 120,000, but many have since emigrated and settled in such countries as Israel, Australia, Canada, New Zealand and the United States. Were it not for the recent influx of several thousand Israelis, the community would be even smaller.

Jewish political and communal leaders interviewed acknowledge the fears but remain cautiously optimistic about the future.

"The Jewish community is currently 'holding its breath' to see if the historic election will produce a stable democracy," said South African Chief Rabbi Cyril Harris.

Steven Spielberg to receive Diaspora Museum's Medal of Honor

Steven Spielberg, Oscar-winning director of Schindler's List, will receive the Medal of Honor of Beth Hatefutsoth — the Museum of the Jewish Diaspora in Tel Aviv — at a dinner of the American Friends of Beth Hatefutsoth on Sunday evening, May 1, in New York's Plaza Hotel.

Mr. Spielberg will be honored "for his contributions to the arts, Jewish memory and continuity," with special reference to his role as director and producer of the award-winning and highly-acclaimed Holocaust film.

Schindler's List is the true story of Oskar Schindler, a German Catholic businessman and member of the Nazi party, who risked his life and spent his fortune to save some 1,200 Jews from deportation to Auschwitz by the Nazis. It received the Academy Award as the best film of 1993.

In addition to winning critical praise for his Holocaust film, Mr. Spielberg also broke records with the movie Jurassic Park, which has proved to be the highest grossing film in history.

The Beth Hatefutsoth Medal of Honor will be presented to Mr. Spielberg by Edgar M. Bronfman, president of the World Jewish Congress.

Beth Hatefutsoth, situated on the campus of Tel Aviv University, is known as the world's foremost cultural and educational repository linking Israel and Diaspora Jewry.

The aim of the museum is to reconstruct the history and culture of the Jews from the period of their exile from the land of Israel in ancient times to the return to Zion and the establishment of the State of Israel in the present era.

Past recipients of the Beth Hatefutsoth Medal of Honor include Nobel Laureate Elie Wiesel, author Leon Uris, author and playwright Isaac Bashevis Singer, historian Salo Baron, actor Richard Dreyfuss and Dr. Michel Chlenov, chairman of the Vaad — the central organization of Jewish communities in the former Soviet Union.

Move to deny Pollard clemency angers his supporters

NEW YORK (JTA) — President Clinton's decision on March 23 to deny clemency to Jonathan Pollard not only disappointed but angered the imprisoned spy's supporters, who believed they might have one last chance to make their case to the White House.

"We had been assured that the president's decision would be considered carefully following the Justice Department's recommendation and that we would be permitted to meet directly with White House officials to discuss the matter," said Ted Boutros, one of Pollard's lawyers.

"We were denied that opportunity," he said.

Clinton's decision came less than four hours after White House spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers said the Justice Department's recommendation in the Pollard case had not yet been reviewed by the president.

In a statement issued by Clinton he explained his decision noting that the former Navy analyst who spied for Israel had committed "one of the most serious crimes against our country — placing national security secrets of the United States in the hands of another country."

Clinton said his judgment reflected the recommendation of Attorney General Janet Reno and "the unanimous views of the law enforcement and national security agencies."

He said he based his decision "upon the grave nature" of Pollard's offense and "the considerable damage that his actions caused our nation."

Jewish groups angry at failure by Arab League to lift boycott

WASHINGTON (JTA) — Jewish groups are calling on the Clinton administration to take the League of Arab States to task for refusing to consider ending the economic boycott against Israel at its meeting in late March.

The National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council and the Anti-Defamation League expressed disappointment at what they called a broken promise by Arab League officials to discuss terminating the boycott at their March 27 meeting in Cairo.

This promise was made to Commerce Secretary Ron Brown by a high-ranking Arab League official in January during Brown's trip to the Middle East.

A source at the State Department said the administration is "disappointed" the termination of the boycott was not discussed. The source said the administration will continue to raise the matter with Arab governments.

At its meeting, the Arab League's council of foreign ministers agreed not to reach a final decision on the boycott.

Qatar, Oman and Kuwait had apparently been prepared to lift the ban, at least partially.

Yiddish makes comeback with help from some friends

NEW YORK (JTA) — A Yiddish summer language institute had to turn away applicants for lack of space. National Public Radio will broadcast Yiddish stories narrated by Hollywood actors such as Leonard Nimoy and Carol Kane.

And thanks to actor Mike Meyers' Barbra Streisand-worshipping character Linda Richmond on "Saturday Night Live," thousands of gentiles can express themselves as feeling "farklept" (choked-up).

As the last generation of immigrant Yiddish speakers passes away, it has long been predicted that the use of Yiddish would disappear with them. While specialists have been predicting the decline of Yiddish for some years, groups around the country are determined not to allow it to the brink of extinction.

"The language in which parents could converse secretly in front of their children is enjoying a resurgence among everyone from university students to feminists to television sitcom characters.

Speakers' numbers rising

"The number of Yiddish speakers in the world is actually rising," said Aaron Lansky, president of the National Yiddish Book Centre, in South Hadley, Mass. Lansky said that with the high birthrate of Chasidim, who use Yiddish as their everyday language, new generations are still being raised in the mother tongue, the "mammeloschen."

But the insular Chasidic community is not interested in modern Yiddish literature because of its secular themes.

"The first modern Yiddish story appeared in 1846," said Lansky, whose study of Jewish history sparked his interest in Yiddish as an undergraduate.

Lansky, along with the National Yiddish Book Centre, which he founded, is responsible for rescuing more than 1 million Yiddish books from being destroyed.

"Until the Nazi era, 45,000 Yiddish titles appeared. And most addressed a theme that American Jews are still concerned with, mainly how does the Jew fit into the modern world?" Lansky said in an interview.

Assimilation was the solution for many immigrants, Holocaust survivors among them, who wanted to begin their lives anew. And the desire to cast away anything associated with their past was part of that process.

Yiddish was one of the first casualties.

"Jews began to recoil from their world, which was destroyed," said Lansky. "But now that initial trauma has passed."

It was a desire to learn about the Jewish world before the Holocaust that guided writer and feminist activist Irena Klepfisz to Yiddish.

Klepfisz, a child survivor of the Holocaust, was raised in the Yiddish-speaking world of the Bund labor movement in Poland. She has taught Yiddish classes at various American universities as well as Jewish women's studies courses.

According to Klepfisz, although much scholarship focuses on the Holocaust, little of it delves into the Jewish world that existed before.

"I wanted to reconnect with my Yiddish background," said Klepfisz, who is a poet and author of A Few Words In The Mother Tongue, a poetry anthology, and Dreams of an Insomniac, a book of "Jewish feminist essays, speeches and diatribes."

"It was such a vibrant community, with so much happening, and I was interested in learning more about the women activists who played such a prominent role in the Bund and its organization," Klepfisz said.

Conference on women

Klepfisz is currently working in conjunction with the National Council of Jewish Women to organize a conference on women and Yiddish. The conference is scheduled for October.

The YIVO Institute for Jewish Research's Uziel Weinreich Program in Yiddish Language, Literature and Culture offers a six-week summer program at Columbia University, in which students immerse themselves in Yiddish through language classes, lectures and film.

College students are a group among which Yiddish culture seems to be maintaining a high level of interest. An estimated 30 universities across the United States offer Yiddish courses.

Janet Hadda, Yiddish professor at the University of California, Los Angeles, said that while the number of students studying the language has decreased in the past few years, enrollment is up in her Yiddish literature in translation classes.

Hadda added that the number of non-Jewish students enrolled in her Yiddish literature classes was also increasing.

Carol Stein of Eugene, Ore., said it was her daughter's study of Yiddish in college that inspired her to organize a Yiddish-speaking group through the synagogue. It meets twice a month.

While facilitating the group comes easy for Stein, a middle-school teacher and librarian, she herself does not understand very much. Yet she is committed to keeping the language alive.

"It is amazing to me, how once you get involved in something like this, how many Yiddish speakers come out of the woodwork," said Stein.

"There are rich little veins of Yiddish, in the most obscure places. There is even a Yiddish radio program in Portland, (Ore.)," she said.

Such study groups are prompting a curiosity in people who have no knowledge of Yiddish beyond the few requisite phrases learned from family members, or inevitably, from television.

"Yiddish has always been present in Hollywood, just because of the large numbers of Jews there," said Lansky. Now, he said, it is increasing as "Jews are more self-affirming."

But Klepfisz does not see such commercial usage as positive. "It is a real denigration of the language. It is becoming a T.V. language, associated only with comedy, or schmaltz," she said.

Said Lansky, "Making Yiddish accessible to people who are not Yiddish speakers is one of our aims."

The book centre's new home, on the campus of Hampshire College in Amherst, Mass., is scheduled for completion in 1996.

It will feature interactive exhibits and programs designed to make Yiddish more available to the centre's visitors.

"I'm under no illusion that Yiddish will once again become a spoken language among Jews," said Lansky. "I'm not trying to revive the past, just to make it more accessible."

University apologized to former students

LONDON — The University of Western Ontario has apologized to a group of former students for anti-Arab bias. Letters of apology signed by university president George Pedersen were printed Feb. 8 in two campus newspapers and the London Free Press. Four of the five complainants were awarded $2,000 by the Ontario Human Rights Commission, which found the university responsible for "differential treatment" of Arab students.

The 1987 case involved the removal of a controversial poster advertising a campus lecture by PLO representative Abdullah Abdullah. The poster showed a cartoon of Israeli soldiers dressed as Nazi storm-troopers surrounding a young Palestinian boy, replicating the famous World War II photograph of a young Jewish boy surrounded by Nazi soldiers in the Warsaw ghetto; and the inability of one Palestinian student to reserve a room for a public event once her ethnicity was known. Pedersen and former Faculty of Law dean Wesley Rayner were named in the case.

Canadian Jewish Congress Ontario region and members of the local Jewish community are concerned the university apologized to a group using a cartoon they see as anti-Semitic, but expressed support for equal treatment of students regardless of race.

B'nai Brith handbook advises students

MONTREAL — Jewish students should not be silent when confronted with anti-Semitic attitudes on campus, says a newly published bilingual handbook from the League for Human Rights of B'nai Brith. Anti-Semitism on Campus: A Handbook for Students advises students to take aside instructors and calmly explain why their views are insensitive, and protest the presence of anti-Semitic speakers on campus. They also shouldn't laugh off Jewish American Princess jokes because "silence solves nothing," according to the handbook.

Jews welcome Malaysian reversal of ban on showing Schindler's List

SYDNEY (JTA) — Australian Jewish leaders have welcomed Malaysia's decision to overturn its ban on the film Schindler's List, but note that the government there has not yet actually approved showing the film.

Anwar Ibrahim, Malaysia's deputy prime minister and a likely successor to Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad as leader of the Muslim country, said the Cabinet observed that "the film deals with the atrocities of the Nazis against the Jews in Krakow, Poland, during the Second World War" and that the film would be screened "in accordance with normal guidelines."

Last month, the Malaysian government banned the film, calling it too sympathetic to the Jews and too critical of the Nazis.

In announcing the reversal, Anwar said the censor's reasoning has been "unacceptable." He said, "The Nazis were brutal and cruel. And the victims, be they Jews or non-Jews, were victims, and our sympathies should be with them."

After protests of the ban by Australia/Israel Publications and the Executive Council of Australian Jewry received wide coverage in the Asian media, moderate Malaysian voices called for the government to review its decision on the film.

Kadir Jason, editor of the New Straits Times, an English-language paper published in the Malaysian capital of Kuala Lumpur, wrote a column saying "I can only express my shock at the arrogance of the board" and "the kind of justification it put up to explain its accounts."

Applauding Anwar's overturning of the ban, Colin Rubenstein, the editorial chairman of Australia/Israel Publications, applauded the fact that the criticism of the ban "had the desired effect."

"The film has a universal significance and it is to be hoped the Malaysian censors do not find a new reason to prevent their public viewing it," Rubenstein told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

Michael Danby, public affairs consultant to the Executive Council of Australian Jewry, said that "the most charitable spin" on Mahathir's "many dubious pronouncements about Jews, Europeans and other non-Malays is that he has simply sought to divert steam from Malaysia's own ethnic/Islamic pressure cooker."

Jewish monuments in Italy discussed

ROME (JTA) — Jewish leaders, historians and officials from the Italian Culture Ministry and other state and local bodies held a one-day conference on caring for Jewish monuments and heritage in Italy.

The conference, held on March 9, touched on problems and needs associated with the care and preservation of archeological remains, archives, libraries, monuments, buildings and other Jewish relics.

One of the key issues was that of the Jewish catacombs in Rome — two vast sets of underground caverns, full of frescoes and other decorations, that were used for Jewish burials in ancient Roman times.

Jews have lived in Rome for more than 2,000 years, and the catacombs, along with the ruins of a synagogue in the old Roman port of Ostia Antica, are the most important relics of this ancient presence.

Until five years ago, the catacombs came under the jurisdiction of the Vatican. They are now under the jurisdiction of the Italian Culture Ministry, but are not open to the public.

U.N. Human Rights panel condemns anti-Semitism

NEW YORK (JTA) — For the first time in its 50-year history, the U.N. Human Rights Commission has passed a measure condemning anti-Semitism.

The resolution was adopted March 9 in Geneva following its submission by the Turkish government.

The commission noted that "racism, racial discrimination, anti-Semitism, xenophobia and related intolerance, as well as acts of racial violence, persist and are even growing in magnitude, continually assuming new forms."

Advocacy for the measure was a cooperative venture of the Turkish and U.S. governments.

The resolution specifically includes anti-Semitism "among other forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance" and makes reference to it both in its preamble and in its operative paragraphs.
